24th February 2009

Silke's picture of her home town goes on show thanks to Seddon Homes

Schoolgirl Silke Sermon's eco-themed artwork has been reproduced on a giant hoarding for all to see.

"Don't drive, walk," is the ten year old's environmentally-friendly motto on the colourful hand-penned drawing of her home village – Chorlton-cum-Hardy.

It so impressed developers Seddon Homes that they had the detailed image enlarged to adorn a protective hoarding surrounding new development, Travis Gate, on the edge of Chorltonville conservation area.

They also gave a £150 boost to funds at Brookburn Community Primary School, Chorlton, where Silke is a pupil.

Travis Gate will comprise nine, four bedroom, three-storey townhouses on a site opposite the school. Construction work will start within the next few weeks.

Headmistress Miss Schelene Ferris was delighted when Seddon Homes sponsored a competition for pupils to design a picture to appear on the Travis Gate hoarding.

She said: "We were very excited to take part in the competition. As a school we strive to be as eco-friendly as possible and all our pupils are conscious of the need to protect the environment. Silke's design clearly reflects this and gets the 'green' message across in an eye-catching and colourful way."
