Congleton development exceeds company's expectations

MORE than half the homes on a new development in Congleton have been sold since its launch in summer, despite the difficult economic conditions.

The prestigious five bedroom properties at Oakmont, Woburn Drive, Mossley, have continued to attract buyers, with the first new residents already settling in.

Only two properties remain at the Seddon Homes development, which company bosses believe will be sold by Christmas.

Seddon Homes sales and marketing director, Denis Maddock, said: "Despite the difficult economic conditions homes built by Seddon are continuing to sell.

"The level of interest in Oakmont has been so great we are confident that the remaining properties will be sold by the end of the year.

"There is still time for home buyers to view these high specification homes, each with double garage, and move in before Christmas."

Set in a sought after semi-rural location, the Oakmont homes are designed with impressive German made Siematic kitchens including a five burner gas hob and Neff stainless steel electric ovens, and stylish Sottini ensuite and main bathrooms. They feature ceramic floors and internal doors made of American cherry wood.

Architecturally of a high standard, they also feature fully turfed front and rear gardens. Denis added: "Well built homes, offering high spec designs in a good location, like these at Oakmont, are continuing to attract attention from home buyers.
